WELCOME

FROM THE DIRECTOR OF MUSIC

On behalf of the Aldeburgh Music Club I would like to welcome you all to tonight's concert in the lovely surroundings of Orford Church.

The choir always enjoy their visits to Orford, particularly as the Church has such a close association with Benjamin Britten, who founded the Aldeburgh Music Club in 1952.

The concert spans some of the most eminent composers of the Italian Baroque period, including a Vivaldi Gloria that you may not be so familiar with.

I am delighted that Jeremy Hughes is the guest conductor for this concert. His knowledge, understanding and performance of baroque music is second to none. I am very grateful to him for taking my place in conducting the choir whilst I have been in Australia.

My thanks also go to tonight's soloists Zoë Brown and Chloe Morgan and to the Suffolk Baroque Players.

Like you, I look forward to hearing tonight's concert.

JEREMY HUGHES

guest conductor

Jeremy Hughes arrived in England from Canada in 1991 and has forged a successful career as a conductor, cellist and music editor.

He is the music director of the Lavenham Sinfonia and the Laurentian Choir, as well as working regularly with other ensembles as both conductor and cellist.

Future performances with which he is involved in the region include Lavenham Sinfonia on 25 April 2010 with Roger Owen, violin in the Beethoven Violin Concerto, and two performances in Suffolk churches on Easter weekend of Pergolesi's Stabat Mater, with Yaniv d'Or and Daniela Bechly.

The Choral music this evening was specially edited for Aldeburgh Music Club by Jeremy Hughes.

Zoë Brown began to sing in her local parish choir in Nottingham at the age of seven and went on to study Theology at Trinity College, Cambridge, where she was also a choral scholar.

She was a soloist on multiple Trinity Choir recordings made with 'Hyperion' and on two live BBC radio broadcasts. With the choir, Zoë has performed extensively both in this country and in Germany, Peru, the USA, Switzerland, France and Canada. During her time at Cambridge, she also undertook many solo engagements including productions of Handel's Solomon and Mozart's Requiem. She also excelled chorally as a member of the 'Cambridge Clerkes'.

Zoë is an accomplished choral singer having been a member of the National Youth Choirs since 1999. She progressed to become the soprano 1 section leader of the National Youth Choir with whom she toured Europe and is now a member of their chamber choir, 'Laudibus'.

A recent graduate from Trinity College of Music, Chloe Morgan studied jazz for 3 years before changing to classical music. She sang with the Monteverdi Choir through their Apprenticeship Scheme for a year, including at the Nobel Prize ceremony in Stockholm, a Brahms tour and in a production of Carmen in Paris last summer.

Chloe now works as a freelance musician singing with various groups – the Academy of Ancient Music, the Marian Consort and Blossom Street Singers – as well as for the Chapel Royal at Hampton Court and St Marylebone Parish Church.

Her opera roles include Sally in A Hand of Bridge (Barber), Dorabella in Così fan Tutti (Mozart), Cherubino and chorus in Le Nozze di Figaro (Mozart). As a concert soloist she has performed in St John Passion (Bach), Messiah (Handel), Membra Jesu Nostri (Buxtehude), Great Organ Mass (Haydn), The Creation (Haydn), Rejoice in the Lamb (Britten), Petite Messe Solennelle (Rossini) and Gloria (Vivaldi).

Zoë is now pursuing a professional career as a choral singer, primarily as a member of the Monteverdi Choir. Last year's engagements with the choir include singing at the Nobel Prize concert in Stockholm, chorus in Carmen at L'Opéra Comique and solos in both the Bach Christmas Oratorio and Handel's Israel in Egypt. She also sings regularly with the choir of St Peter's, Eaton Square and is a member of 'Consortium', 'Icon', 'Rare Theatrical' and 'Polyphony'.

Zoë studies singing with Ashley Stafford.

Aldeburgh music club founded by Benjamin Britten for local people

The Aldeburgh Music Club has over eighty members who sing with professional soloists and orchestras in local venues, including Snape Maltings Concert Hall. The Club was formed in 1952 by Benjamin Britten and Peter Pears.

New members are always welcome, particularly sopranos and male voices, with younger members especially welcome. There is no audition for admission but singers should have an acceptable tone and good ear for pitch. Regular attendance is required at each Tuesday rehearsal at 7.30 pm in the new Aldeburgh Community Centre from September to May.

East Anglia is fortunate in having so many talented musicians living locally. Tonight's orchestra, the Suffolk Baroque Players, draws on this pool of expertise. Many of these musicians work regularly with the Aldeburgh Music Club Choir and with other choral groups in the area.

SPONSORSHIP

SUPPORTING THE CHOIR

Since the Aldeburgh Music Club began in 1952, it has been blessed by the interest and involvement of professional musicians. Its founding fathers, Benjamin Britten and Peter Pears, were soon joined by Imogen Holst and their commitment to the club remained throughout their lives.

The club has always been fortunate in its committee and officers, who have brought their various and extensive expertise to the club, guiding it to its present form, a registered charity performing on a larger scale than ever before. Its founding principles still remain; it is made up of people meeting together to learn and perform music to the best of their ability and is supported by an ever increasing number of people who appreciate having the opportunity to enjoy the club's activities, both as performers and audience.

Support of every sort is vital for the success of the Club. This can be done in a practical way, for example by helping with concert arrangements, or by becoming a Friend, Patron or Sponsor.

FRIENDS

Friends pay an annual subscription of 50p plus £15 per ticket for The Friends of AMC '100 Club Draw' which has prizes of £20 to £100. Each ticket is valid for every draw during the year.

ANNUAL SPONSORS

We welcome sponsorship from local corporate bodies, companies and individuals who agree to support a particular concert, soloist or orchestral player, provide services or materials or subsidise a publication.

ADVERTISING IN CONCERT PROGRAMMES

You can support the Club at the same time as promoting your business by advertising in our concert programmes.
